5. Who Pays and Why It's Worth It

Why hotels care

- Empty event space still costs money: power, AC, cleaning and upkeep. U.S. hotel utilities run about $2,478 per room each year (CBRE, 2025).
- Filling empty time is valuable. One hotel executive estimates that +10 points of meeting-room use at a 10-room hotel ≈ $2 million a year.
- Event business is profitable: the hotel food-and-beverage department keeps about 29 cents of profit per dollar (CBRE, 2025).

How BreezeBook makes money (hotels pay, planners use it free)

What	How it works	Price (our assumption)
Free start	A hotel's first 2–3 events through BreezeBook are free	$0
Subscription	Listing, matching, dashboard, structured requests	$299 per hotel per month
Booking fee	Only when an event is booked through us	3% of the booking
Measure + 3D scan	We measure each space on site	$375 per space, one time
Featured spot	Show up first, for example in slow summer weeks	$150 per month
Negotiation assistant	AI that bargains for the hotel using its rules	Premium add-on (priced in the pilot)

The math for one hotel (example)

4 spaces, space use goes from 40% to 45%, $1,500 per booking:

- Extra revenue: $219,000 a year. Extra profit: about $64,000. Staff time saved: about $29,000.
- Pays BreezeBook: about $11,700 a year.
- Net gain: about $81,000 a year, which is 6.9× what it pays. If the gains are only half that: 4.5×.

The math for us (year 1, 20 Miami hotels)

$242,000 in revenue, or about $121,000 if only 10 hotels sign up.

How we're different

	Cvent	Peerspace	Tagvenue	BreezeBook
Measures space on site	No (uses the hotel's floor plans)	No	No	Yes
Search by photo or Pinterest idea	Not stated	Not stated	Not stated	Yes
AI that negotiates for the hotel	No (compares bids)	Hosts quote by hand	Not stated	Yes
Focus on empty space and slow seasons	Not stated	Hourly rentals	Not stated	Yes
Cost to the venue	Not public	20% fee	10–15% fee	3% + subscription

Honest note: Cvent is the big player and already has AI search and 3D floor plans. We focus on what it leaves empty: small, last-minute, outdoor and off-season bookings.

All prices are our assumptions to test in the pilot. Sources are in the judge brief.
